1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to a method for the cyclic isothermal extrusion of a plastic article having a cylindrical outer shape, having an inlet for feeding plastic into a tubular extruder die, the die having an outlet for the extruded product and having a discharge device for discharging the extruded product from the extruder and having a suitable rheological condition for cyclic isothermal extrusion which is defined by a state of flow of the plastic material in the extruder and by the speed at which the extruded product is discharged from the extruder. 2. Description of the Related Art Such a method is known from EP 0 834 645 A1. A method of this kind may be applied in particular in the production of bicycle tubes from an extrusion composition which contains polyethylene and/or a polyolefin obtained by means of metallocene catalysts. Here, an extrusion composition which is sufficient for the extrusion of a number of bicycle tubes, but in each case shorter and smaller than the length of the extruder, is fed to the extruder. The extruded bicycle tubes are then severed from one another and the bicycle tubes are subsequently trimmed to a length necessary for their use. Cycling to extrusion may take place after intervals of 1 to 20 minutes. The state of flow of the extruded bicycle tube is periodically checked and the cycles to extrusion adjusted if necessary. When, for example, a tubular extruder die is not cut off before the extruded bicycle tube has been severed from the extruder, the bicycle tube may stick to the die. In this case, the entire bicycle tube is discharged in one extrusion cycle and the extruded bicycle tube is cut off from the die. This is possible in all conditions in which, on the one hand, the size of the extrusion composition is adjusted to the length of the extruder and, on the other hand, the speed at which the extruded product is discharged from the extruder is adjusted to a suitable value. When extruded bicycle tubes are severed from the extruder die with a hammer or with a suitable cutting tool, the edges of the extruded bicycle tubes have to be ground down in order to provide the necessary straight edges. When the edge of the extruded bicycle tube can no longer be ground down by hand, a cutting device is used, for example, a chisel which is fixedly mounted on a suitable drive. In order to obtain a practically

Parker: 'Fantastic' Night For Racing After 32 years of service at RTR, the legendary Parker Photo Services will be closing the doors for good on Saturday October 28th. And after all that time, the photo shop at RTR Raceway has been a great success. Caleb Parker has been the last face you would see walking the fine line of the race track. "It really was a pleasure doing this. Yeah I enjoyed it," said Caleb. And that really is the only way to describe it. You can see from Caleb's face that he hasn't really thought that far ahead yet. But having a close relationship with his customers in RTR Raceway certainly has given him plenty to think about in the past four months. "It's been a great experience. Actually it's pretty fun and I get to talk to the racers and get to know them," said Caleb. After 32 years of providing support and relaxation to motorsport enthusiasts, Parker Photo Services will be closing the doors for good on Saturday October 28th at 2pm. So if you want to say goodbye, you better be there early. As he has learned at camp, the Bruins need him to play well in this tournament. "He definitely needs to have better games, but I'm also going to make it hard on him to not have great games," Cassidy said. "He's had some great games this week, and some not so great, so I think he's got to make that judgment. He's got to play to his strengths and play within the system and understand that. If he does, he can have a great tournament." "We're excited about the fact that Jack has played in our first two games," Cassidy said. "He's a big part of what we're looking for. He's a good skater, a big player, a guy who can make plays and he's tough to play against. He's a big, physical presence for us and it's really important he's in our lineup on Tuesday night." Porter was a key performer against the Oilers, keeping pace with Rob O'Donnell on the point in the offensive zone. "He did a great job," Cassidy said. "He had a couple chances to go off the wall on the power play and it just didn't come through. He drove to the net
