What is Photoshop? Let's start with an understanding of Photoshop's basic structure: a window in which you have a document, or an image you want to edit. Photoshop can accept images in all common raster file formats, like TIFF, JPEG, GIF, BMP, and PSD. Often, you can use Photoshop on any operating system, including Windows, Mac, and Linux. What is Photoshop? Let's start with an understanding of Photoshop's basic structure: a window in which you have a document, or an image you want to edit. Photoshop can accept images in all common raster file formats, like TIFF, JPEG, GIF, BMP, and PSD. Often, you can use Photoshop on any operating system, including Windows, Mac, and Linux. To really get familiar with Photoshop, it's helpful to think of it as an application for making and editing raster images. That is, Photoshop is a program for altering images in layers. The layers can be transparent, and the images can be manipulated one atop another. The best part of this approach is that once you're familiar with the basics, it becomes relatively easy to learn other features. It uses a layer-based editing system that enables raster image creation and altering with multiple overlays that support transparency. The layers can be added to, subtracted from, moved, and their alpha channels merged together. With the various tools for manipulating layers, you can create almost any effect you wish. Where does this software come from? Photoshop was created by Macromedia, a company from America, with headquarters in Dallas, Texas. In 2001, Adobe purchased Macromedia, adding Photoshop to its list of software products. Photoshop started out as a proprietary software application and has since moved to a free (open source) code base. To get up to speed on a lot of the features Photoshop can do for you, consider taking a few tutorials online. Many tutorial sites offer free tutorials with both web-based and downloadable versions. One popular site is adobetuts.com, which offers a wide range of tutorials on Photoshop. Their tutorials are a simple way to learn how to use Photoshop's features, making it easier for new users to get started. The site also offers follow-up tutorials that walk users through techniques they've learned. Adobe recommends that new users sign up for the free trial version, after which they can purchase a monthly, annual, or monthly-for-life membership. Those who

Suggestions and Feedback for the new Magic cards I was just reading Cogs post on requesting for a new Magic Card, and I just wanted to take a moment and tell you guys something interesting. In the past, a few people would just want a Magic Card to be made based on their suggested cards on their blog, but now with the addition of the new cards to the card site, there is a new options for this process. So if you see someone wanting a Magic card, the best thing to do is just go on their blog and just have a chat with them. I will have a more in-depth blog post going up on how this process is going to work, but basically their blog is a good place to start. As for non-bloggers, they can fill out the suggestion form on the new card site, which is located right at the bottom of the card site. It is an easy form to fill out and, I am sure, the people at Magic will take the suggestions very seriously. Feedback that has been suggested or posted about a card: Currently or in the past this card has been a card from a set or set of cards: Alphabattlerager Blasphemer Bestows Curse of the old ways Dawnlord Elder Passage Gather Breath Heart of Void Imp Light Soulblade Sun-Crowned Falconer Mana Flare Path of Fury Resurrection Tezzeret the Seeker The old ways A card that this card is based on: Alpha Mage (with W) Blight Behemoth Champion of the sun Delver of Secrets Eclipse Eldritch Evolution Gristleback Hero's Downfall Huntmaster of the Fells Huntmaster of the Fells Into the Wild Kindle (with W) Moggzilla Pneuma (with W) Razorpete Sly Statue Snare Thrun, the Last Troll (with W) Underworld Victini (with W) Viridian Spellstone Wintersmith Zurgo Bellstriker What should it be changed to:

School safety improvement plan questioned February 21, 2013 MARQUETTE - Marquette school administrators are asking for more input from parents and teachers before developing a safety plan at the university. Many teachers have voiced concerns about proposed security improvements at Marquette as they are presented in a school safety plan agreement that is expected to be signed by April 1. The officials say the plan and the negotiations behind it need community input. "We're trying to balance the need for safety with the need to prepare our children and faculty in a way that encourages learning," said John Ross, assistant to the vice president and dean of academic operations. "As we look at what is necessary and what is reasonable for our environment we need to be intentional and consider how we can make our school as safe as possible." Article Photos The school will be getting a new security force, and will have a couple of new uniforms, says the university's assistant to the vice president and dean of academic operations, John Ross. Some clothing the campus police currently wear is black, which some students have complained is nightmarish against other colors, like dark-blue. City and state laws require the campus police to be visible, and according to several people who have seen the plans, the new uniforms should be black. The uniforms are a big part of the plan. The current, day-to-day uniform is a typical school police uniform in style, and falls short of meeting the requirements. "The current uniform is outdated and there are several positive and negative aspects of the uniform," Ross said. "It's something that we want to make sure is proper. "We're looking for a design that gives as much visibility as possible and then it can be upgraded over time." The new force will consist of 16-20 officers. Ross said the
