Latest version of the world's best anti-malware software.Microsoft filed a complaint with the European Commission on Saturday after the European Union Chamber of Commerce and Industry (EUCI) requested to pass copyright questions to the internet giant. Microsoft on Saturday filed a complaint against the EUCIC for bringing Microsoft to court for allegedly passing on copyright to the German company Box. Microsoft has taken advantage of a "link tax" being planned by the EUCIC, which requires the internet giant to pay a fee for linking to independent websites. "At the heart of the matter is how boxes trade links to content, and how the internet lets millions of people share information, and store content, but limits their ability to do so in ways that only an internet company can," said a Microsoft spokesperson. A EUCIC spokesperson told TechEye that the link-tax question was not pursued as it was "settled as a matter of law in 2014". Box works in partnership with the libraries of several countries and is supported by the US-based non-profit organisation Creative Commons. "We have 6d1f23a050
