Solution to problem is simply dial a or b, wait for a few seconds then hit reset button on device. Also you need to check on the device that is the power source which activated the tablet is. If it is not then you should replace the device. Print is now printed, you can try to reset the device by long-pressing the home button, waiting for the on-screen menu to appear, and then selecting reset device. To reset a tablet, you can hold down the power and volume up buttons (shown on the right in the photo) simultaneously for several seconds. To reset a print head that is for inkjet printers, you will need to unplug the printer and wait a few seconds, then plug it back in. To reset a print head that is for laser printers, you will need to unplug the printer and wait a few seconds, then plug it back in. As an alternative, if your print is still not printing, or if you suspect that your ink cartridges may be empty, you can refer to your printer manual or website to recover a print head that is for inkjet printers. For laser printers, you can also refer to your printer manual or website for instructions on how to recover a print head that is for laser printers. Zoey You can reset the print head which is for inkjet printer by holding down the power and volume up buttons at the same time (shown on the right in the photo). For laser printers, you can refer to the printer manual or website for instructions on how to recover a print head that is for laser printers. So i tried to reset it and nothing happen. It's still working when I turn on the tablet and it's still working in windows. Now my question is, can it still able to print the things in mac? If yes then I need to change to windows. Open a web browser to the web server, and navigate to the folder containing your remote printer, you need to download the.prn file to your computer first: Click to expand... And then open the.prn file and upload it to the directory of the existing printer job: And there's no chance to reset the printhead using oZi-KI heat transfer solution free download. I've replace the print head with another new one, and it's still not working, oZi-KI is still not working to print my photos, so does anybody have any idea
