I like the Photo Grid feature, which is available to download in the annual edition. I often use it when I edit my images with myself. I find it makes my work flow smoother and helps me to track things faster. To be honest, I am not a big fan of some of the AI tools that Photoshop uses. While I do not want to deny that there is some use for them, I feel they can go a bit further. Photoshop has always been a bit too pretentious with many of the filters it offered, which I believe has led many to turn to other products and editing programs. I do not have a problem with them, but I feel Photoshop could offer more and improve more. However, the main reason I don't like Photoshop is because it is too reliant on Adobe Motion. Motion was inspired by Adobe Premiere and Photoshop, but it looks nothing like it. The colour of it is so different and looks so monotonous. I am sure that every company would love to have a program that looks like it was inspired by Adobe Premiere. Repeating patterns in textures or overlaying multiple layers is more manageable with the recent update, thus making patterns and textures easier to manage. Elements has many prebuilt tools for painting with patterns, since this is an area of heavy usage in this version. With the new tools, an image becomes more gradually built up and it is much more user-friendly.
The new Edit > Paste Special > Paste in Place works much better than the pasting in the canvas with the previous method. The method was very convenient, but sometimes it brings in tricky pixels. Also, this method is faster than the pasting in the canvas.

My brother is in the center of the street. He is being trained to be a cat stretcher, but his puppy is at the end of the road, completely worn out. He has found a stick in the street and is going to pounce on his puppy & put it into the carrying device. He steps in, but no, the puppy is not there. He takes a look in the ditch, but still he cannot find it. He goes back to the damp door. Pounces again, but again there is no sign of his puppy. We are standing there with our new, very expensive video camera, and have made a promise to become the parents to the house. He steps slowly towards the house, diving into the hedge like a cat, in order to sneak up on it. The shot is tight, and is only there for a second, but we're all down, hoping to capture this golden moment. The little puppy has run into our room, and is hiding behind the bed. Our brother can't find it; he follows us from room to room. Where did it go? We ask you, If there is no intention of referral, then you should not refer. It is your duty to the client to conduct a good job. Why is that, you ask? There are many reasons why it is good to conduct a good job. Companies want a good job, however, it is your responsibility to provide a good job.
